The Continuum Center for Health & Healing provides integrative medical services to 30,000 New Yorkers annually. Demand for The Center's services has increased greatly as health care in the United States continues to shift from one focused on illness and reactivity to one of wellness and prevention. The need for sub-specialists has grown particularly fast, resulting in the necessity for a large expansion within their current building.

Array worked closely with the dedicated staff and Feng Shui expert to create an environment that speaks directly to the unique combination of services and treatment style. Array maintained the required program component while also incorporating earth friendly and cost effective materials.
